Martial law victims get $1,000 checks

By Leticia B. Salazar

TO AMOUNT of money was being paid to a list of victims of human rights violations during the Marcos dictatorship, but a court ruling ordering the state to pay the victims is a measure of justice to the victims of martial law.

"The pain is still with us and I share it with other Filipinos whose children or husbands had suffered... We were forgotten," Cecilia Lagman, who lost her son in 1972 during the Marcos regime, said yesterday.

No monetary compensation will be given, Lagman said at the program where the first 12 of those who suffered from the human rights violations in 1972, she received their $1,000 checks from lawyers led by Robert

'Smile diplomacy' prevails amid conflict

By Vito Conteras, Philip C. Salinas and Jerry S. Espinosa

USING what the Philippine foreign secretary called "smile diplomacy," some 440 Filipinos made the dangerous journey from troubled Libya to Manila on Monday, through desert roads dotted by government and rebel checkpoints, some manned by armed troops and bedecked up with tanks and anti-aircraft guns.

Saudi Arabia denies Binay visa to visit the King

By Jerry C. Egan

THE ENRAGED Ayman al-Binay, who as the Presidential Adviser on Overseas Filipino Affairs in Manila, has expressed disappointment over the last-minute cancellation of his trip to Saudi Arabia.

Binay, now in Kuwait, had planned to proceed to Riyadh, the capital of the Middle East Kingdom, but the Department of Foreign Affairs was unable to get him a visa, Jerry Egan, spokesman and media of fact, said the become possible.

According to Egan, the Philippine Embassy in Riyadh was unable to schedule an audience with the Saudi King Abdullah. In an early visa was given to Vice President Jose Duque last week.

Binay "only learned about the trip cancellation when he was already in Kuwait," said Egan.

"He respects the cancellation of his visit to Riyadh. He was looking forward to meeting with overseas Filipino workers, and had intended the embassy to prepare for many OFW organizations as possible. The Vice President has directed the embassy to make such arrangements for a visit in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia at the second possible time," said Egan.

Asked for a comment, Foreign Assistant Secretary 2, Salvador Malinao, also OFW spokesperson, said "We need to go on an audience with the Saudi King at short notice."

"In recent months, our work has been very busy," said Malinao.

Foreign Secretary Rafael Lopez had reportedly said he planned to Binay that the Saudi government wanted to prepare for the vice president's visit so he could see several countries in his travels as the "social affairs officer" here, and another time and another.

Pinoy, meanwhile, has appeared in the Kuwait government to conduct 13 Philippine invested at the Kingdom General Jail in Kuwait City.

Carrying President Aquino's letter of support to the Saudi authorities, he also urged his OFW to help in the preparation of 50 invited OFW entities staying at the Philippine Embassy in Kuwait.

In his letter to Kuwait Sheikh Sabah al-Jaber al-Sabah, the President wrote: "In the spirit of brotherly cooperation and humanitarian consideration, I wish to request the 13 Philippine invitees from the 12 Filipinos detained in the Kingdom General Jail who served time for various offenses, and in the most appropriate of 12 different workers in the 12-130000 Philippine Mission Center."

The coming home of the most appropriate time is a testament of the spirit of brotherhood and magnanimity of the Kingdom's authorities and the Philippines, as well, as it celebrates the 25th anniversary of the Single Power Relations in Manila," Mr. Aquino added.

Binay is "not to visit 170,000 Filipino workers and maintain a human policy toward Filipino workers," said Malinao.

In 2010, the Kuwaiti leader

"extended a full pardon to 140,000 Filipinos and ordered the release of 140,000 detained OFWs. Another 17 OFWs were reported to Manila Mission Center."

In a statement, Binay wrote that he was "conducting with Philippine authorities in the Middle East, particularly those in countries near the Libyan border, for the repatriation of Filipino workers in a spirit of brotherhood."

"However, I have directed all agencies concerned to remain vigilant as the Libyan situation and expand all efforts to ensure the safety of our fellow Filipinos," he added.

Muntinlupa Celebrates 16th Cityhood Anniversary

Mayor Aldrin L. San Pedro

There is overwhelming reason to be upbeat as Muntinlupa marks a milestone in its political history since 1995 -- this rising city in the metropolis of more than half a million population.

The city, with a rising population that needs community discipline as a signpost and source of its strength, is indubitably on the road to progress. The local government went through City Mayor Aldrin L. San Pedro, has laid its cards, as it were, on the table for its residents and outsiders, stakeholders, all for their appreciation the direction it has set for them. The city, which has reached awards in a stream of verifiable achievements during Mayor San Pedro's term, has added to higher goals, while demonstrating its will in giving residents a place where they can have a sense of peace, law and order, a socially environment, a rule of justice, and pride, among others.

It has also issued a call -- being backed up by other LGUs not only in the national capital but in other areas of the Philippines. Without doubt, Muntinlupa has not been without challenges, but as Muntinlupa grows, it has steadily moved forward with calm and determination.

The city, which has a projected annual revenue of P789 million, is now planning to have a determined local government unit whose leaders are committed to a safe and clean environment.

Local officials took one step closer to this by creating Ordinance No. 10,136, banning the use of plastic bags in wet and dry goods and groceries, respectively, throughout the city. The ordinance, effective January 1 last year, the City government took the challenge for the residents and started implementing the ordinance immediately passed by the City Council.

Muntinlupa has become the first Metro Manila City to ban the use of plastic bags in wet and dry goods and groceries, respectively, throughout the city. The ordinance, effective January 1 last year, the City government took the challenge for the residents and started implementing the ordinance immediately passed by the City Council.

At the helm of the local government work, Mayor San Pedro has institutionalized policies that helped sustain and sustain the city's growth. And he acknowledges the support of his constituents. "With the support of our citizens, we have created an environment conducive to both local and foreign investments."

This has led to a huge boom in various industries that has put Muntinlupa on what San Pedro calls "the rising edge of the 21st century." These industries include real estate development, information technology, and business process outsourcing.

The local government unit has also ensured that every resident can enjoy the benefits of such development, giving thanks to his political creed "Tukoy-tukoy na Serbisyo."

But while it looks to the future with calm, hope and well-placed enthusiasm, the present leadership acknowledges its debt to its historical past. Said San Pedro: "It is a reminder that everything we do today, while inevitably tied to the lessons that came before us, is ultimately for both the city and our children's future."

But as Mayor San Pedro has said, "progress and development can go hand in hand with environmental protection." Added the Mayor: "Several problems and issues that climate change can be and need to be approached not only by government and business, but more importantly by every individual person working in partnership with all sectors of society."

According to San Pedro, whatever gains from such progress and development "would be brought to naught if concerns for the environment would be set aside and treating whatever environmental degradation brings that adversely affect human lives are treated less than what it deserves."

"I do not believe in the common perception that progress and development are new to the environment. They are not contradictory. But one has a balancing effect on the other."

With his knowledge and experience in business and law, the erstwhile youngest municipal councilor and later youngest city councilor of Muntinlupa, has found his skills in local government, with his rights and duties focused towards the upliftment of his constituents. His dream, as he once wrote in a note for Muntinlupa City "a continuing growth and development for progress and business to be attracted continuously, increased or enhanced quality of life for all Muntinlupans."

He dreams to see his constituents "enjoy the fruits of my accounting quest for improved peace and order, drug-free Muntinlupa, better infrastructure and facilities just what is expected when the dream extension is completed, among others."

At the same time, San Pedro looks at the future where public services in the city "would be as considered and dedicated ever to the delivery of basic services to the entire constituency."

As Muntinlupa marks its 16th anniversary as a city, it looks at its history for the celebration of the 4-story new Hall of Justice in Brgy. Tuguegar where the different levels of the judicial arm are housed under one roof. This will contribute to the administration of justice, seen to hold at the front porch of the multi-storied new edifice, as "the forward pillar of government."

There are no signs Muntinlupa City will rest on its laurels. With a dynamic leadership that inspires enthusiasm from its residents, many look forward to yet another celebration perhaps in a grander magnitude 365 days hence.

'Don't blame mothers' deaths on Church'

By Joseph R. Uy

THE 11 MARCH deaths that came in the country daily should not be blamed on the sect of the Catholic Church, as reproductive health (RH) law on the grounds caused by corruption and social inequalities, said a church official yesterday.

Miguel Jimenez, secretary general of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP), issued a statement yesterday in the CBCP office in Intramuros on Manila that the clergy "is not in any way downplaying the women's situation."

He also stressed that the Church was one in urging the government to effectively address the root causes of poverty that worsen the plight of Filipinos.

Taiwanese boat crew in mishap

THE HILBERT Coast Guard reported that the bodies of a Taiwanese fishing vessel were found sailing near Manila last night, leaving the five crew members stranded in the Philippines.

Coast Guard officials said the vessel, a 24-meter fishing boat, was found in the Manila Bay area. The ship was carrying five crew members from Taiwan. The Coast Guard is currently conducting a search for the vessel.

one of the CBCP pastoral statements issued last month and was to respond to a letter RH advocates delivered to the CBCP office on Monday.

The statement said that the CBCP was "not in any way downplaying the women's situation."

The statement also urged the government to effectively address the root causes of poverty that worsen the plight of Filipinos.

"We want to inform the Catholic laity that the RH bill has been passed," said Jimenez. "We want to inform the laity that the RH bill has been passed."

He also stressed that the Church was one in urging the government to effectively address the root causes of poverty that worsen the plight of Filipinos.

Among the principal reasons behind the RH bill is "to avoid unnecessary reproductive health care," and to "ensure that public health services are available to all Filipinos," he said.

He said that instead of an RH bill, the government must establish more hospitals and clinics in the rural areas and improve health services to make health services more accessible to all Filipinos.

SO THE PUBLIC MAY KNOW

This is to inform the public that T.C. Pharmaceutical Industries Company Limited (TCPI), a Thailand-based company, is the legal owner and manufacturer of Red Bull Energy Drink ("Red Bull").

A recent newspaper notice said that a writ of preliminary injunction ("Writ") has been issued by the Quezon City Regional Trial Court restraining TCPI from terminating the exclusive distributorship rights of Energy Food and Drinks, Inc. (EFDI). Contrary to said notice, the exclusive distributorship agreement between TCPI and EFDI has long been terminated way back in 2008 due to various breaches by EFDI.

The notice also warned the public that anyone caught selling, buying, distributing and consuming Red Bull shall be held criminally, civilly and/or administratively liable. However, there is nothing in the said writ which prevents anyone from selling, buying, distributing and consuming Red Bull. What is prohibited is the termination by TCPI of the exclusive distributor agreement, which as mentioned, has long been terminated.

Further, there is nothing in the Writ which states that, "Energy Food and Drinks, Inc. remains the exclusive distributor of Red Bull Energy Drink products in the Philippines." Neither does the Writ prohibit the public from "selling and/or buying, distributing and/or marketing and/or consuming Red Bull Energy Drink products brought into the Philippine market by parties other than by Energy Food and Drinks, Inc." as written in the said newspaper notice.

The Writ merely states:

1. Pursuing the summary termination of plaintiff's exclusive distributorship rights in the Philippines;
2. Establishing, authorizing or licensing anyone, directly or indirectly, other than the plaintiff to act as distributor of RED BULL ENERGY DRINK PRODUCTS, and to use any of the proprietary marks of the defendant in the Philippines; and
3. Directly or indirectly taking out any advertisement in any medium whether print, radio or television, or holding out to any person or entity other than the plaintiff as the Exclusive Philippine Distributor of Red Bull Energy Drink Products.

"Likewise, the parties in this case are hereby ordered to maintain the status quo ante pending this civil action."

Thus, TCPI would like to assure the public that the sale, distribution, buying, and consumption of Red Bull products is neither unlawful nor a criminal act under the Writ. The public is hereby advised to take precaution against any misrepresentation about TCPI and/or Red Bull intended to mislead the public.

The Real Score:

Palawan's Forest Remains the Country's Largest

Avoid the growing concern over the threats confronting Palawan's forest, it's green velvet strip remains the largest expanse in the entire Philippines representing about 17.3% of the country's total forest cover. With the 2005 SPCT's satellite images using remote sensing techniques as the basis of interpretation, PCSD's data show that Palawan still has 895,138 ha, this representing about 46% of its total land area. This is nested mostly in the mountain ranges dissecting mountain Palawan. Palawan covers just 0.4% of the country's total land area, but its forest cover exceeds the regional forest cover of the 10 regions combined for the 17 regions in the country not in tandem with the province's 18,000 ha of mangrove forest representing 33% or one third span to the entire country.

Apparently, the growing concern of the alleged alarming decline in forest cover was prompted by the comparative data on forest cover between 1990 and 2005. In 1990, Palawan's forest was recorded at 726,896 ha representing about 42% of Palawan's land area. In 2005, forest cover went down to 46% appearing to have declined by about 8% (8,508 ha, per year) for the last 15 years (1990-2005).

One of the major factors for decrease in forest cover could be attributed mostly to conversion of public lands into agricultural and other private uses. The government's land clearing and agrarian reform programs. The reported forest loss is comparatively very low as deforestation rate was a recent high of 78,000 ha/year in the early 1970s before the SEP Law was passed" says Ramon Duran, DG-Exec, Director of the Palawan Council for Sustainable Development Staff (PCSDS).

The 19,000 hectares annual deforestation rate was estimated by foreign and Filipino consultants of the EEC/ANIP Integrated Environmental Program (IEP) of the Palawan Integrated Land Development Project Office (PIPDO) in 1990. PCSDS, the support of the SEP Law for the Strategic Environmental Plan (SEP), which was later legislated into a special environmental law for Palawan by virtue of RA 7611.

Decrease in forest cover is a common scenario in areas of developing countries in Southeast Asia to accommodate development activities so as to sustain the needs of fast growing population. In Palawan however, forest utilization for economic endeavor is to take growth and at a slower pace, as we have ICAN, the brainchild of the SEP Law" says Duran. ICAN is a graded system imposed of this national policy is the influx of mining regulations within the last few 25 years, especially in 2007. This served as leverage to SEP's sustainable development objectives.

The PCSD, the agency tasked to implement SEP in Palawan, monitors that balancing development and the preservation of environment under varying interests and agendas of stakeholders and the plebeians both within and outside Palawan with regard to mining in a comprehensive and efficient task.

Following the estimated ICAN guidelines, the PCSDS estimates that these areas are situated in less vulnerable areas such as the Controlled Use, traditional use, and multiple use zones. The PCSD's records show that out of the total 47,357 ha, applied for mining in the province, the Council only granted Strategic Environmental Plan (SEP) clearance covering an aggregate area of about 17,145 ha, or only about 3.6% of the 465,336 remaining forest. Out of these, only 1,357 hectares or 0.2% is allowed for exclusive province. It is strategically certified to protect environmentally critical habitats.

Generally, the core area is strictly protected to meet conservation objectives. Around the core area, the buffer zone is reserved for non-extractive uses, while the transition zone is reserved for sustainable development activities with local communities are engaged. At 33 municipalities in Palawan and the City of Puerto Princesa have adopted their own laws and regulations to their respective planning and regulatory agencies. Inside in the Law is the PCSD (Palawan Council for Sustainable Development) charged with implementing the Law in Palawan. It is practically composed of a multi-sectoral and multi-disciplinary representation of Palawan leaders and socio-representatives. It is presently chaired by the Governor of Palawan, Gen. Abanador-Natal S. Millia.

SEP Law is for Sustainable Development

Development

PCSD's mandate is to ensure sustainable development and to ensure environmental protection. And as a national government agency, this is in its top priority of the national policy when mining is one of the national government's ruling principle.

Because of SEP Clearance in mining claims is a shared responsibility among the stakeholders such:

that before PCSD will allow all project applications, the endorsement of the Local Government Units (Municipal Council, Provincial Board) and the Integrated People's Consultative Commission (IPCC) are required.

While in other provinces, ICAN of the SEP Law assured that highly vulnerable areas in the province will not be subject to any (not just mining) extractive development activities, and will be considered free of human development basis. This means a long-term guarantee of providing around 965,000 ha, located in the core and selected zones. Citizens had these are guaranteed for protection.

Senador-joined "balancing environmental protection with that of economic development is a tough job but to favor 3.2% for mining operations or 2.2% (including exploration) of its total area located in otherwise areas for mining will definitely not do down the nation between environmental protection and development. PCSD is aware, that the future should not be compromised to ensure it is more generationally healthy," he said.

SEP Clearance Compliance Monitoring

Companies whose mining applications were issued SEP Clearance are only required by the PCSD to engage in compliance mining. This concern is applied out in the terms and conditions of the SEP Clearance.

To minimize negative environmental impacts, mining companies are to make sure that mitigating measures are followed. It is a strict, follow strict law to be followed, including the installation of anti-erosion and other measures. Non-compliance of these may lead to cancellation of the SEP Clearance.

A Positive but Challenging Indicator

The approximate change in deforestation rate from 18,000 hectares per year (1974-1982) to 1,500 hectares (1982-2005) can be a positive indicator that the pressure on the forest has somewhat eased. However, PCSDS believe that there is a need to ensure considering the consequent loss of biodiversity and the loss of ecological services values brought about by land conversion.

"With the changing climate, rains are heavier and more intense, dry spells are so extreme. The PCSDS is also assessing these changes so that immediate action will be taken to secure water supply during dry spells."

It must be recalled that in Dec. 2007, the PCSD issued for a Mining Summit that led to its declaration to stop processing applications for small-scale mining in Palawan, and subsequently its support in Provincial Board's Resolution, it joined Rep. Ma. B. Dizon supporting the 25-year moratorium in the issuance of Mining Permits/Mineral rights for new applications of the area.

As it is in the mining small-scale mining, once scientific justification is proven, the future for the last of large-scale mining operations in Palawan may soon be a possibility.

The remaining forest cover of Palawan is a huge target for carbon stock sequestration. Calculated at 200-5 billion metric tons of carbon (PCSDS 2010). Using a conservative carbon price of USD15/Mt, the total economic value of carbon stocks of Palawan forests can be estimated at PHP 100.1 billion. Carbon stock market for Palawan therefore is a feasible.

"We should take pride that despite all these, Palawan remains its status as the province with the largest carbon sink in the country. PCSDS continuously worked not to compromise the sustainable development agenda of Palawan. It is its mandate to do so. However, it is important for everyone to understand that sustainable development is not just environmental protection. There is a growing number of people to feed, roads to build, and schools to run in national vision of economic stability without forgetting its commitment to making it truly a 'Star and a Sapphire Province'. The future is not just an economic development but a path to a better life for the entire Palawan," says Duran.

of protection and development control for the entire province.

Mining Status under SEP

Further opening Palawan to mining has become a controversial issue not only locally but nationally and internationally as well. NGOs and some sectors of civil society have mining as the main culprit for Palawan's deforestation. "But this allegation is greatly inaccurate and lacking in well-established data support" stressed Duran. For instance, PCSDS records findings directly relate actual loss of the standing trees in Palawan but primarily due to mining but to continuing harvest of timber for domestic consumption. Forest loss was common for agricultural development and continuous establishment of rubber plantations to accommodate the Province's increasing population growth rate at an average of 3.3% per annum, mostly due to migration.

Moreover, the disastrous forest fire experienced in 1996 that engulfed southern Palawan particularly Banggai Range and Mt. Mantalingaya was not approved by the E1 mining permit. The 1996 forest fire probably showed off a fundamental problem of the existing mining law. Significantly, DENR's implementation of CARP Law for the last 2 decades which necessitated issuance of CARP permits including the national government's land clearing program implemented by the Land Management Bureau of the DENR that were converted about 35,200 ha, of the forest lands in southern and central Palawan into AAO. This forest land use conversion represented about 50% of the forest loss.

Areas Approved for Mining

The national leadership of the Philippine government has been making use of the key industries to be developed in the efforts to secure funds for financing public sector investments. The but mining operation while the larger part was restricted for mining exploration.

As of date, there are 426 pending mining permit applications with the Mines and Geosciences Bureau (MGB-DENR) covering approximately 742,436.36 ha, or roughly 50% of the total Palawan area. If all these will be subjected to mining, one can imagine a particularly more forest loss to be left in Palawan. But the PCSDS confidently say that with SEP Law's strict strategy the Environmentally Critical Area Network (ECAN) limit of areas covered by these applications will not prosper since most of the mining zones fall within the restricted and core zones (or protection zones) where mining activity is absolutely not allowed.

The SEP Law and the PCSD

The central strategy of the SEP Law is a zoning strategy called the ECAN (Environmentally Critical Areas Network). ECAN is a graded system of prohibition and development control over the Reyes, former Municipal Gov. Romeo, Carlos and Henry Magallanes were expected to appear in tomorrow's hearing.

Magallanes, another security aide of Reyes who was identified by Lario and Arana as their main contact in Puerto Princesa City where they planned the killing, had left Palawan in Saturday, according to agents of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

Reyes' widow, Patsy, said she was surprised when he disappeared in August 2010, and she was not sure if he was really to go with Reyes' lawyers who had been seen at the NBI headquarters.

Lawyer Aurelio Alonzo, counsel of the Ortega family, said they would move for the issuance of an arrest warrant against all the suspects after the preliminary investigation and the immediate filing of murder charges against them.

Attorney general Robert Reyes

continued to refuse to comment on the killing. He said he would wait the business day to release interviews on Monday that he and Lario, both from Pangasinan, were allegedly at the hotel 7700-000 by Lario to kill Ortega on Christmas Day in 2010, but they did not feel any opportunity to do so.

"We could not stomach it. We decided to back out," Arana said in his report.

He said they decided to leave the capital on the night of Dec. 23 to the 23 miles to southern Palawan.

Arana and Reyes were in contact with Magallanes while they were causing the confusion and workplaces of Ortega.

"We were sure that (Ortega) did it on Saturday's afternoon when he gave an address for a meeting that we had brought," he said.

Reyes said he was in Hong Kong on Saturday where he is in contact with the mother of Arana, asking him to help in raising the whereabouts of her son.

Reyes, who arrived in Manila on Sunday, said he was in contact with former contact with the Arana while they were in a hotel room coming from Hong Kong to Manila, where they stay up late, as they proceeded to the NBI. With a copy from Juan Arana, he said to Manila.

COTABATO CITY—A grenade explosion killed two teenage girls near the compound of the family of Gov. Isidro Magallanes in Davao, September 24, Saturday night, but police could not say if the top provincial official was the target of the attack.

The explosion, caused by an MTV grenade launcher, hit a house "just a meter's throw away" from the Magallanes compound in Barangay Inday, about 11 p.m., and senior Supt. Magallanes, Police Magallanes police division.

He did not identify the families as the victim of the blast, "We are still investigating," he said.

Magallanes was not in the compound during the explosion, Police said.

Two grenades were actually fired but only one went off, killing the two girls who were sleeping, he said.

Police did not rule out the possibility that the attack was actually intended for the house's owner.

Army soldiers fail to show up in Co slay probe

By Mike Diaz

NIKE ARMY soldiers implicated in the killing of top lieutenant Leonard Co and two of his companions in Leyte failed to show up to yesterday's preliminary investigation being conducted by the Department of Justice, saying they did not have the money to travel to Manila.

In a motion submitted to the panel of state prosecutors handling the case, the soldiers, belonging to the 17th Infantry Battalion, asked to defer the investigation and transfer the proceedings in Leyte where they were based.

The prosecutors are waiting for the motion to be filed to increase by several hundred pesos, who is representing the Co family, who filed murder charges against the soldiers.

"We were contemplating and we are of the opinion that the victims should not suffer, but we are not taking sides here but we did the victims should not be in fear that they are undergoing night now by spending, going to Zamboanga, Leyte, for the purpose of the preliminary investigation," assistant State Prosecutor George R. Diaz told reporters.

During the hearing, Diaz emphasized that the military had the resources to bring the soldiers to Manila.

He also said the panel would order Defense Secretary Misael Guezo and Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Benito Alarido to ask them if they will come to be confined in barracks at Fort Benigno in Manila to attend the preliminary investigation.

The soldiers, led by 1st Battalion Detachment, are being represented by a private counsel instead of military lawyers.

Their motion was signed by Detachment head lawyer Victor Reyes.

It was stressed that it should be the Armed Forces that should ensure that its soldiers attend the proceedings. He stated that the Army had claimed that the 25 killing of Co and his companions was a result of a legitimate military operation.

"We are awaiting them as most seriously injured. The government has a duty to make them available as these hearings," Ortiz told reporters.

Ortiz also asked the panel to consider the case the Co family had filed with the complaint filed by the Philippine National Police (PNP) against the soldiers on Jan. 4 in Division City.

The police head probable cause to file charges against the military for evidence against the case involving the soldiers and the alleged homicide.

Norwegian, girlfriend cleared of slay raps

By Justine Magallanes, Inquirer Filipino

OSLO, NORTHERN—The Norwegian prosecutor's office on Monday dismissed the charges of kidnapping against the Norwegian girl, Heidi, from Isabela, for the abduction killing of a 16-year-old girl three weeks ago.

Acting Norwegian Prosecutor

Joseph Ibrahim said the police failed to suggest that charges against her and her boyfriend, Patsy, were abandoned by a PNP.

The two were asked to fly in Hong Kong on Feb. 12 when investigation agents presented them from Isabela at Manila's airport. They reportedly told her the death of the two suspects in the killing of 16-year-old Patsy.

Police then arrested the two after three weeks, including a month, allegedly identified them as the women who picked up Patsy.

Patsy was arrested by a PNP on Jan. 4, in Feb. 12 when Patsy was 16 years old. She was arrested in Manila's airport, 17 kilometers south of the city. She was found dead the next day in a ditch in Barangay Cullangan in Baguio.

Reyes and Ibrahim denied any involvement in the crime. They said that on the day of the abduction, they visited a Norwegian language school at just 2 p.m., went to a restaurant and at just 4 p.m., checked in at a Palace Hotel in Baguio City and Isabela.

The National Bureau of Investigation confirmed the officer's single report the order of the abduction's timeline, based on the Israeli security camera footage.

Reyes and the police failed to release the document, the report the Israeli order of the crime.

Pacman foe slowed by age—Salud

By Ray Lucarelli

When SHANE Mosley was first mentioned as a possible opponent for Manny Pacquiao way back in 2005, CBS head producer Les Moonves failed to stand.

"Things never happen. Plus Mosley, he's not 17," Salud, one of Pacquiao's closest adviser and trainers, told sportsmen then.

Salud's opposition, of course, was not unreasonable.

Mosley, who weighs around 170 pounds in between fights, was perceived to be too big, too strong for Pacquiao, whose walking weight is 130-134 lb.

Now anyone.

Salud was wrong, like most boxing pundits, that Pacquiao will annihilate Mosley when they tangle for the Filipino star's World Boxing Organization welterweight crown on May 7 at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Salud was right, though. Pacquiao would win by late stoppage, something nobody had done to Mosley.

"It will be over by the eighth, ninth or 10th round," Salud told the Los Angeles Times last week.

Salud didn't realize the eight-round world champions will be too late for Mosley, a three-time world title star noted for his speed and power.

Age factor

After watching Mosley's last two fights—a loss to Floyd Mayweather Jr. and a split draw with Sergio Martinez Jr.—Salud agreed that Mosley has slowed down a bit at 35.

"No doubt, he wouldn't be able to take Manny down," Salud said to ESPN.com. "Manny will hit chips around him and wear him down."

Still, Salud admits Pacquiao is to win, especially during the early stages, against Mosley, who once a failed Klinker puncher thought that Pacquiao (40-0, 28 KO) against six former world draws and six KO's against six former world draws and six KO's against six former world draws.

"Mosley (32-2, 23 KO) isn't afraid to take an injury," Salud said. "He's not afraid to take an injury," Salud said.

Donald rules Match Play

OKLAHOMA, ARKANS.—The Match Play Championship ended with what most have felt like a strange scenario for English's Luke Donald. He was playing Donald with a trophy on his back.

Donald spoiled Germany's Martin Kaymer's rise to No. 1 in the world by winning with a performance to dominate in never played the 18th hole all week.

On a Tuesday last day in the high desert, which began with some covering the first two, Donald pulled ahead for good with a hole-in-one on the par-5 18th and a put on the 19th hole, eventually closing out Kaymer 2-1.

The consolation prize for Kaymer is going to be his 1 in the contest, which he scored by reaching the championship match.

Donald was in more discomfort than his opponent, however.

"I was hot, but not in America in the rain, and I was a bit nervous," he said. "I was a bit nervous, but I was a bit nervous."

Donald said he was a bit nervous, but he was a bit nervous. "I was a bit nervous, but I was a bit nervous," he said. "I was a bit nervous, but I was a bit nervous."

P-Noy regime boosts business confidence

By Denise L. Lopez

STILL RINGING the euphoria that followed President Aquino's decisive victory last year, Filipino businessmen now count themselves as among the most optimistic in the world, according to a recent worldwide survey.

More specifically, the results of the annual Global Business Optimism Index report showed that Filipino business leaders were most upbeat about the world in terms of optimism with 67 percent of businessmen saying they were more confident about business prospects for 2011.

Local businessmen also in part bolster their faith from 2010 69-percent optimism outlook (70 percent), and ahead of those in Brazil (74 percent).

World Bank eyes more loans, grants to Philippines

By Maribel V. Ramos

THE WORLD Bank has expressed its desire to better help in the economic development agenda of the Aquino administration by increasing private loans to the Philippines.

The bank has been providing about $600 million worth of loans and grants to the Philippines a year, but World Bank country director Bert Schmitz said the institution expects to contribute to the country's development projects.

"We are looking at increasing the amount," Schmitz said in a briefing last day morning in Manila. Philippine Development Forum (PDR) held at the Manila Hotel in Pateros City. He said, however, that the board of the World Bank has yet to approve the interest of investors. The World Bank is one of the Philippines' biggest sources of official development assistance (ODA), which comes either in the form of a grant or low-interest rate loan that are used to fund infrastructure projects and social services.

During the PDR President Aquino and members of the economic team met the government's development agenda. The forum—which was attended by representatives from foreign embassies, the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank, the Asian Pacific Economic Cooperation and leading business firms of foreign governments—was meant to solicit funding and technical support for the government's priority projects and programs for the medium term.

NDC to help raise funding for PPP projects

THE NEW Development Co. (NDC) will raise funds in the stock market to fund its infrastructure projects, according to the government's Public-Private Partnership (PPP) program. Finance Secretary Cesar Purisima said yesterday that the government planned to regularly pay the debt on capital markets to ensure a healthy funding to potential PPP investors.

Since the huge cost needed in pursuing infrastructure projects, the government will require funds. Purisima said that since the government could borrow from the capital market at a lower cost, it might as well use bonds and that raised the money to PPP investors.

The government also hopes it is more confident from the other market changes prices from. This is why we set up the NDC to raise bonds outside of the private firms in support of the PPP program said.

He added that NDC would use bonds only when and would raise, for instance, if a company holder of a certain infrastructure development contract needed financial assistance to complete its development. NDC could raise bonds

Wood shortage seen likely

By Angela L. Han

TO PREVENT a wood shortage, the Philippine Wood Products Association (PWPA) is asking the Department of Environmental and Natural Resources to accelerate its evaluation of logging firms and allow those complying with rules on sustainable forest resource management to resume logging activities.

In a statement, PFTB director Antoni Figue said the company would start testing its new wood shortage very soon if the industrial firm's logging operations could must be filled

He said a wind shortage would not bode well for the country, as this would affect a number of industries, including housing, construction, boat building and fishing.

The logging movement has caused the instability of the wood industry to supply the construction industry with its wood product requirements, particularly concrete forming boards used by builders of highway buildings. At present, many construction companies are already complaining about the shortage of these products. Future ment virtually resulted in building construction from 1980 to 1982. The result,

Filipina wakeboarders, American champs shine in CamSur

By Amanda S. Toppo

THE WORLD'S top professional wakeboarders and waterskiers were the main attractions at the recent 2011 Ultimate Wake Championship (UWC) held at the CamSur Water Sports Complex (CSC).

Many girls—and girl power, too—were not missing either, as Samantha Bernades from Quezon City bested Germany's Elisabeth Fuchs for the Pro Women's Wakeboard title category, while Rodolfo Yrma Rosero placed second for Pro Men's Wakeboard.

The competition, an international gathering of wakeboard and waterski athletes, was the final leg of the 2010 Pro Wakeboard Season (PWSS) held in the United States.

With its world's most complete wake park facility in

System 2.0 tracks.

"This is the goal of the competition—open to everyone," said CamSur's Sir Gas-Lito Villa. "This site should be known UWC for the third consecutive year."

Overseas riders included Rod Foshee from the US, who won a UWC overall wakeboard champion, and topped up places in the Open Men's Only and Pro Men's Wakeboard (boat and cable) categories, and Rod (boat), UWC overall wakeboard champion.

But it was UWC's youngest rider, 12-year-old Daniel Smith, who became the crowd favorite after logging top spots in the Pro Men's Wakeboard (cable) category, beating other more senior competitors. Green also placed in the Open Men's Only and Pro Wakeboard (cable) categories, taking home prize money worth $7,000.

"I know I landed my 180s, 360s, Moby Dick 360," said Smith, describing his top water-board and wakeboard tricks.

Rider and Moby Dick is an figure of 180s or 360s. With the 360, a rider must extend his body upward, bend above the head, and then bring it back to the top.

"To have the whole spectrum of ages here is surreal," said Bernades.

"I just liked my best," said Bernades of her victory. "This was long just to be, because during the run, a lot of people shake—nervous get to some people."

Bernades, 24, took up wakeboarding when she was 19, when Bernades started her career in the de la Cruz Islands. She now teaches the sport, too, and will be representing the country under the wakeboarding category at the next Southeast Asian games.

"Wakeboarding is a progressive," says Bernades. "There's no end to it. There's always something to learn every time you ride."

The mystical origins of psychic surgery

INNER AWARENESS

Abstract

Italy: Annar, Josephine, Nina, Susana Aguil, Jose Merced, Gary Magno, Sergio Rodriguez and Marcelino Amigui. I am sure there are many others I have not heard of but who have some great stories.

Have mankind psychic surgery is unique to the Philippines and is part of our spiritual and mystical tradition. And therefore I do not see the practice dying completely for a long time to come despite the spread of western, scientific medical practice. For man's spirit must be nurtured and taken care of, not only his body.

A distinction must be made between the terms "baptism" and "genetic surgery." Not all baptismalists can perform genetic surgery. It is considered to be a gift of the Holy Spirit granted only to a chosen few, according to the belief of the Spiritist Church. There are thousands of baptismalists all over the Philippines, but only a few are genetic surgeons.

Brazil also has psychic surgeons in the Christian Spiritist tradition, but their method calls for the use of instruments such as knives, scissors, and even a saw to opening up the body of patients. Our psychic surgeons use only their bare hands in doing so. And this is what baffles many western investigators and psychic researchers. The mystery behind this practice can never be understood unless we understand the ways of the spirit and the role they play in our daily lives. The native Egyptians have apparently discovered a way to tap such mysterious powers.

healing method known as hand-to-hand psychic surgery. The people who practice such indigenous method of healing are called "faith healers," which indicates its religious or spiritual origins.

One possible explanation why both leishers and psittids are poorly adapted to temperate climates is the Boreo-Pangaea and Gondwanan areas including Amazonia, because the species movements started and derived here and not in the Palearctic and Mediterranean regions. The reason why psittids developed more fully in those areas is because the hills of psittids worldwide, the two basins of Amazonia (mainly the South of Amazon) and the basin of Mediterranean have been translated into the shaping landscape, as well as the Pangaea and Gondwana & the

In the mid '70s, our prominent research society listed at least 300 psychiatric hospitals practicing in those areas. I have no statistics to determine how many still practice this art of healing at present. What I know is that their number has greatly diminished because the older ones have died with no younger healers replacing them.

Among the well-known history I met in the Wu and Wu who are no longer alive are Chenmo, Dore, Yang Aggona, Juan Huan, hormone also enhances fat loss and tightens skin. Progesterone is a natural diuretic that reduces "water weight" and patients lose that initial swelling. Beta-THC (Human Chorionic Gonadotropin) is a hormone present in pregnant women, which increases electrolyte metabolism.

I used to have a healthy sex life with good orgasms. Then, I never went any, nor feel that I need it anymore. I hate to force myself to have sex with my wonderful husband. I came from my husband because I love him. What is wrong with me?

You have to have good levels of serotonin in order to feel satisfied. Serotonin is referred to as the "bliss hormone." When it is low, you're depressed. If it's too high, it can cause a problem not only with your own life, but with others as well. When you lack the hormone, your blood Heightened sensitivity of the orgasmic zones are attained as well. A hormone paste can determine your levels, and deficiencies easily treated by using testosterone cream or injections.

The 36 years old, just entered menopause, and I've noticed that I've been shedding so much hair recently. I have tried all shampoo and hair care products in the market that may help, but nothing happened, is there anything else that can help?

When I have said this out loud to a battery of referees, in many cases, the issues are disputable and resolvable. Their loss may be attributed to liver deficiency and thyroid gland disorders. In some cases, severe stress may cause shirking of both issues suggests sudden elevation of cortisol, the same hormone, and the same symptoms, among other factors. All

I am a 30-year-old male, single and I used to be very fit when I was young—then I changed the corporate world and got married. Over the years, my weight went up and I developed a belly. It must have been all those business meetings and family parties. To make matters worse, my libido is low, but my cholesterol and blood sugar are elevated. Then one

With aging, histamine levels increase in men. Consequently as age progresses, and a third of men, mostly in the belly area, have the "itch" "hives" body. A less likely cause is the "high cholesterol, high blood pressure and high blood sugar" syndrome—Metabolic Syndrome—X, a condition that increases the risk of heart disease and stroke. Interestingly, this is highly related to diet and exercise as mentioned. This syndrome may be gone to one's diet to decrease their blood lipids and is not, rather than diet. Other symptoms include: itching in Metabolic syndrome, are some, skin rashes, others, including obesity, aging and a sedentary lifestyle. Thus, it would seem to be worthwhile to manage these, via properly and consistent exercise.

shows on the way for the evening. And as the lights burst into a flurry of pyrotechnic colors, Wilkerson continued in this one more surreal phase: after another "fighting," "Thank the World" title theme.

Kay was apologetic at the time of the incident. "There's a long way and a mountain that you're barely working for us to perform here," he said. "So, I feel like I need to [argue] for only that I look up so strong to come here and party with you."
